

Abstract of the Disclosure

The present invention relates to the generation of transgenic avians and the production of recombinant proteins. More particularly, the invention relates to the enhanced transduction of avian cells by exogenous genetic material so that the genetic material is incorporated into an avian genome in such a way that the modification becomes integrated into the germline and results in expression of the encoded protein within the avian egg.